There is considerable difference in the use of terms referring to the education of adults within the region. Moreover the terms used and the meanings attached to them are changing in several countries, reflecting change in actual policy, priorities and programmes. Some countries use 'adult education' or an equivalent term in a very comprehensive manner, others have a precise and restricted meaning, such as 'basic education for adults'. The term 'non-formal education' has recently been adopted in several countries and can be used in more than one sense.
